MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO DISQUALIFY

Defendants Barbara Saggese and Beachcroft LLC respectfully move that the Court (Ozalis, J.) be disqualified from hearing this matter based on well-founded concerns over the appearance of impartiality. Under the facts set forth in the Affidavit of Barbara Saggese and the Affidavit of David S. Hardy, an objective observer – and certainly any litigant - would reasonably question Judge Ozalis’s impartiality as it pertains to this case for two independently sufficient reasons. First, Judge Ozalis’s interest in a decade-long controversy and associated action pending in [REDACTED] captioned, [REDACTED] would cause an objective observer to reasonably question her impartiality given the substantial and striking overlap of issues and party dynamics in this case. Second, Judge Ozalis’s participation in settlement discussions among the parties held during a pretrial status conference on January 13, 2019 requires that she be disqualified from issuing further decisions in this matter.

A. Legal Standard

Practice Book § 1-22(a) provides, in relevant part, that, “[a] judicial authority shall, upon motion of either party or upon its own motion, be disqualified from acting in a matter if such judicial authority is disqualified from acting therein pursuant to Rule 2.11 of the Code of Judicial Conduct.” Rule 2.11(a) of the Code of Judicial Code in turn requires disqualification “in any proceeding in which the judge’s impartiality might reasonably be questioned.”

Rule 2.11(a) requires disqualification when a judge’s impartiality is “reasonably” questioned. For this purpose, it is well-established that the reasonableness standard is an objective one, and “not the judge’s subjective view as to whether he or she can be fair and impartial in hearing the case.” St. Germain v. LaBrie, 108 Conn. App. 587, 595-96 (2008). In applying the standard, “the question is . . . whether a reasonable person would question the judge’s impartiality on the basis of all the circumstances.” Rosado v. Bridgeport Roman Catholic Diocesan Corp., 292 Conn. 1, 20 (2009); Papa v. New Haven Fed’n of Teachers, 186 Conn. 725, 744-46 (1982) (“The question is not whether the judge is impartial in fact.”). Thus, even in the absence of actual bias, disqualification is required “if a judge’s impartiality might reasonably be questioned because the appearance and the existence of impartiality are both essential elements of a fair exercise of judicial authority.” Rosado, 292 Conn. at 20.

Maintaining the appearance of impartiality is just as important as actual impartiality because the appearance of impartiality engenders “public confidence in the administration of justice” and promotes the integrity of the judicial system. Id., citing R. Flamm, Judicial Disqualification (1996) § 5.4.1, p. 150. See also, Abington Ltd. P’ship v. Heublein, 246 Conn. 815, 822-24 (1998). Accordingly, in ruling on a motion to disqualify, the courts have warned against “drawing all inferences favorable to the honesty and care of the judge whose conduct has been questioned,” because it could “collapse the appearance of impropriety standard into a demand for proof of actual impropriety.” Id.; Rosado, 292 Conn. at 21 (“Judges who are asked to recuse themselves are reluctant to impugn their own standards. Likewise, judges sitting in review of others do not like to cast aspersions.”).

With respect to a judge's participation in settlement discussions, Connecticut has adopted a bright-line rule requiring disqualification in court cases "in order to eliminate any appearance of impropriety and to avoid subtle suspicions of prejudice or bias." Krattenstein v. G. Fox & Co., 155 Conn. 609 (1967). "When a judge engages in discussions looking to the settlement of a case in which he will be called upon to decide issues of liability and damages... it is impossible to avoid questions as to whether the judge can disregard matters disclosed in the conference and whether a preliminary judgment, formed at the conference, and predicated on unsubstantiated claims of proof, may have some subtle influence on a final judgment after a full hearing." Carvalhos Masonry, LLC v. S and L Variety Contractors, LLC, 180 Conn. App. 237, 240-41 (2018) (internal quotations omitted). Thus, "[w]hen a judge engages in pretrial settlement discussions of a court case, he should automatically disqualify himself from presiding in the case..." Timm v. Timm, 195 Conn. 202, 203 (1985) (citing Canons 2, 3 C.(1) Code of Judicial Conduct)). The rule of automatic disclosure reflects concern for, among other things, "the dangers often associated with a settlement judge presiding over the trial, such as the potential revelation during settlement discussions that would not be admissible at trial and may prejudice one of the parties". Carvalhos Masonry, LLC, 180 Conn. App. at 242.

B. Argument

1. Knowledge of Judge Ozalis's personal interest in the [REDACTED] controversy and the associated [REDACTED] litigation would cause an objective observer to reasonably question her ability to act impartially in this case.

The case of [REDACTED] was a decade-long litigation concerning the extent of public rights in portions of [REDACTED] in [REDACTED]. The specific controversy at issue in [REDACTED] was the right of the public to use the portion of [REDACTED] above the low water mark, in which beachfront property owners claimed title. Judge Ozalis owns a home in [REDACTED] [REDACTED] Numerous non-waterfront property owners in the [REDACTED] who had become accustomed to unrestricted use of the beach (“the Backlot Owners”) intervened in the [REDACTED] case and asserted public interests adverse to the beachfront owners. Judge Ozalis did not personally intervene in the case. The [REDACTED] ultimately ruled in favor of public rights just over three months ago. Id. The facts set forth in the Affidavit of Barbara Saggese reveal that Judge Ozalis, regardless of her lack of party status, has had an unavoidable personal interest in the long-running [REDACTED] controversy and the associated [REDACTED] litigation. Judge Ozalis did not disclose her interest in these matters at the outset of her assignment to this case. Upon request by counsel for Beachcroft and Saggese, Judge Ozalis confirmed the predicate fact of her ownership of a [REDACTED] backlot at the status conference held on January 13, 2020. Hardy Aff. ¶¶ 19, 20.

The issues and party dynamics in the [REDACTED] case are strikingly similar to those in this case. By way of example, the Petition filed by the Interior Lot Owners in this case alleges that historically Crescent Bluff Avenue “provided a significant public recreational resource as well as public access between Pine Orchard Road and the shore of Long Island Sound... [that] [t]he residents of Crescent Bluff Avenue, as well as the general public, have long enjoyed free and unencumbered public access to the Avenue... as well as convenient access to public boat moorings located just offshore... [and that] Beachcroft’s efforts to exercise sole control over access... poses a substantial risk to many residents of Crescent Bluff Avenue and constitutes a substantial loss to the public of ... a valuable recreational resource.” (Petition, No. 100.30).

Similarly, in the [REDACTED] litigation, the Backlot Owners alleged that “for decades the public has used [REDACTED] for a variety of ocean-based activities...Nobody... asked for, or thought they needed to ask for, permission from beach front owners to engage in ordinary recreational activities such as walking, swimming or beach games...” (Saggese Aff. Ex. C Partial Judgment, p. 7)

The Interior Lot Owners in this case have complained that Beachcroft “has posted private road signs” seeking to limit access to its property and Long Island Sound and “complain[ed] to the police about alleged trespassers.” (Petition) Similarly, the Backlot Owners in the [REDACTED] case alleged “[s]everal beach-front owners in recent years had placed no trespassing signs on or about their property.” (Saggese Aff. Ex. C Partial Judgment, p. 7) Accordingly, for all intents and purposes, the interests of Backlot Owners in the [REDACTED] case are identical to the Interior Lot Owners in this case, i.e. fundamentally adverse to the private property interests of the waterfront owners.

As it pertains to Judge Ozalis, although she did not seek to intervene in the [REDACTED] case as a party, over 200 of her Backlot neighbors, including her neighbor located at [REDACTED] sought to formally intervene to vindicate public rights in [REDACTED] (Saggese Aff. Ex. C) The issue of full public rights in [REDACTED] was a matter of both personal and economic concern to the Backlot Owners. The court in [REDACTED] noted that “[a]ccess to the entire beach is the major attraction for renters, who are members of the general public. Advertising materials used to attract renters emphasize access to the entire Beach.” Consistent with the court’s observations, Judge Ozalis herself offered her Backlot property for rent and advertised its access to [REDACTED] as a principal selling point. (Saggese Aff. Ex. D). Thus, although Judge Ozalis did not seek to intervene in the [REDACTED] case, her personal and economic interests were unavoidably and directly at stake in that litigation.

The collective experience of our courts throughout history and in this particular controversy¹ demonstrate beyond any doubt that disputes over property bring out intense personal passions and resolve among affected owners. An objective observer – and certainly any litigant in the position of Beachcroft and Saggese- would therefore reasonably question whether a judge with a personal interest of the type held by Judge Ozalis in the [REDACTED] case could set aside any influence, prejudice or bias that may have developed during ten years of neighborhood consuming litigation between backlot owners and waterfront owners, and impartially preside over a property rights case presenting the same fundamental party dynamics and issues. Accordingly, even if Judge Ozalis is satisfied that her personal interest in the [REDACTED] controversy has not affected, or will not affect, her rulings in this case, any objective observer would reasonably question her ability to impartially preside over it. Connecticut’s Code of Judicial Conduct embodies the principle that maintaining the appearance of impartiality is just as important as actual impartiality because the appearance of impartiality engenders “public confidence in the administration of justice” and promotes the integrity of the judicial system. Disqualification is therefore required under the foregoing facts and circumstances.

2. Judge Ozalis’s participation in settlement discussions would cause an objective observer to reasonably question her ability to remain impartial in this case.

As set forth in the Affidavit of David S. Hardy submitted herewith, the Court participated in and was privy to detailed and time-consuming settlement discussions held among the parties in her chambers on January 13, 2020. Our courts have sensibly adopted a rule of automatic disqualification where a judge participates in settlement discussions in a court case given the revelations and concessions that may be made for settlement purposes and the resulting unavoidable “questions as to whether the judge can disregard matters disclosed in the conference” or “whether a preliminary judgment, formed at the conference... may have some subtle influence on a final judgment.” Carvalhos Masonry, LLC, supra. This rule applies to this case since it is the judge that is charged with the responsibility of final decision-making.

This case is brought under an archaic statute that provides for the appointment of a committee in the first instance to find whether a proposed highway is of common convenience and necessity and if so to estimate damages sustained by persons affected by it. Conn. Gen. Stat. § 13a-63. The statutes and the relevant Practice Book rules provide however that the court may accept or set aside the committee’s report. See Conn. Gen. Stat. §§ 13a-64, 13a-65, 13a-67. See also, P.B. §§ 19-14 (bases for objecting to committee report), 19-16 (entry of judgment on report), 19-17 (“If the court finds that the committee... has materially erred in its rulings or that there are other sufficient reasons why the report should not be accepted, the court shall reject the report...”). In addition, the statutory scheme in this proceeding provides aggrieved parties with an option to move for the empaneling a jury to reestimate damages if the court accepts the finding of the committee as to common convenience and necessity, and further provide that the court may set aside the report of the jury if one is empaneled. Id. B

Here, Beachcroft and Saggese will challenge any finding of common convenience and necessity for the taking of their private property (and seek to uphold a finding to the contrary), such that the merits of the committee’s finding will be subject to final review, approval and/or rejection by this Court.² They therefore have well-founded concerns that concessions or positions expressed for settlement purposes could influence or prejudice the final merits determination on both the issues of common convenience and necessity as well as damages ultimately handed down by the Court. Accordingly, the principles underpinning the bright-line recusal rule apply here, but even if there were room for debate on characterizing this proceeding as a court case, the Court must err on the side of recusal to “eliminate any appearance of impropriety and to avoid subtle suspicions of prejudice or bias” and to ensure “public confidence in the administration of justice.”

C. Conclusion

Defendants Barbara Saggese and Beachcroft LLC therefore respectfully move that the Court (Ozalis, J.) be disqualified from hearing this matter.

AFFIDAVIT OF BARBARA J. SAGGESE

The undersigned, Barbara J. Saggese, being of lawful age and duly sworn according to law, depose and state to the best of my personal knowledge and belief as follows:

1. I am over the age of eighteen years and I understand the obligations of an oath.
2. In connection with research I have conducted concerning this case I have come to understand the following:
 - a. Judge Ozalis and her husband have owned property in [REDACTED] [REDACTED] since 2000. A true and correct copy of the relevant and publicly available assessor's property card is attached hereto as Exhibit A.
 - b. [REDACTED] is within walking distance of a coastal section of [REDACTED] known as [REDACTED]. A map depicting the relevant area is attached hereto as Exhibit B.
 - c. The ownership and use of property at [REDACTED] has been in dispute since 2009. Specifically, until October of 2019, litigation styled [REDACTED] [REDACTED] had been pending among the State of [REDACTED] [REDACTED] the so-called "Backlot Owners" and the "Beachfront Owners" concerning the use of [REDACTED]. In the [REDACTED] litigation, the Beachfront

Owners sought a judicial declaration limiting the rights of the public in the use of ██████████ Relevant published judicial decisions and pleadings from the ██████████ case are attached hereto as Exhibit C.

- d. Approximately 200 Backlot Owners who own property in the ██████████ ██████████ intervened in the ██████████ litigation asserting prescriptive easement and easement by custom rights to engage in recreational activities on the beach. (Ex. C)
- e. Judge Ozalis's home at ██████████ is located in the ██████████ ██████████ (Ex. A), and the 200 Backlot Owners who intervened in the ██████████ litigation include at least one individual who owns property at ██████████ The interests of the Backlot Owners were aligned with the interests of the ██████████ and ██████████ who are advocated for public rights against the private property interests of the Beachfront Owners. (Ex. C)
- f. As a Backlot Owner, Judge Ozalis had a direct personal and economic interest in the ██████████ litigation even if she did formally intervene in that case as a party. Upon information and belief, the Judge Ozalis offers ██████████ for lease as a vacation rental advertising its close proximity to ██████████ to prospective renters. A publicly available advertisement for the rental of ██████████ is attached hereto as Exhibit D.
- g. Decisions made in favor of the Beachfront Owners in the ██████████ case over the past 10 years had the potential to negatively impact Judge Ozalis's interests, such that her interests as a Backlot Owner were naturally adverse to the interests of the Beachfront Owners.

3. The dynamics of the [REDACTED] case are strikingly similar to the dynamics of this case.

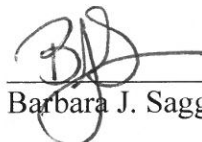

4. As the owner of a waterfront home in this case, I am defending claims initiated and asserted by Interior Owners (Back Lot Owners) with access rights to the water which were defined by the Connecticut Supreme Court Decision: McBurney vs. Paquin, 302 Conn. 359 (2011) who are seeking to expand their use and access by making portions of my waterfront property open to the public. Similar to the [REDACTED] case, the Town of Branford and Pine Orchard Association are representing the interests of the public and the Interior Lot Owners on Crescent Bluff Avenue.

5. The Interior Lot Owners for all intents and purposes have the same personal and economic interest in making my property public that Judge Ozalis and her fellow Backlot Owners had in the judicial establishment of public rights in [REDACTED] in [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] In the [REDACTED] case, the backlot owners were looking to expand their rights to use the beach.

6. The foregoing facts have caused me to reasonably question the Court's appearance of impartiality as it pertains to this case, and I believe that such information would cause any objective observer to reasonably question the same. I also question why this information was not disclosed to the parties at the outset of this case.

7. I completed my research on the foregoing matters and sent it to my counsel at the end of December 2019 when he was out of state for the holidays, and asked him to bring this information to the Court at the next available opportunity to attempt to confirm its accuracy.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million (from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1998) and the number of people in the public sector who are employed in health care has increased by 1.2 million (from 1.3 million in 1980 to 2.5 million in 1998) (Department of Health 1999).

There is a growing emphasis on the need to improve the quality of health care and to ensure that the health care system is able to meet the needs of the population. This has led to a number of initiatives, including the introduction of the Health Care Act 1999, which aims to improve the quality of health care and to ensure that the health care system is able to meet the needs of the population.

One of the key areas of focus is the need to improve the quality of patient care. This includes ensuring that patients are treated with respect and dignity, and that they are able to participate in decisions about their care. It also includes ensuring that patients are able to access the services they need, and that the services are of a high quality.

Another key area of focus is the need to improve the quality of the health care workforce. This includes ensuring that health care professionals are able to provide high quality care, and that they are able to work in a safe and healthy environment. It also includes ensuring that health care professionals are able to access the training and development opportunities they need.

There are a number of factors that can influence the quality of health care. These include the quality of the health care system, the quality of the health care workforce, and the quality of the patient care. It is important to ensure that all of these factors are of a high quality, in order to ensure that the health care system is able to meet the needs of the population.

There are a number of ways in which the quality of health care can be improved. These include the introduction of new technologies, the implementation of new processes, and the recruitment and training of new health care professionals. It is important to ensure that all of these measures are implemented in a way that is effective and efficient.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased by 1.5 million (1990–1999) and is projected to increase by a further 1.5 million by 2010 (Office of National Statistics 2000). The number of people aged 65 and over is projected to increase by 2.5 million by 2020 (Office of National Statistics 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to develop strategies to meet the needs of the ageing population. The Department of Health (1999) has published a strategy for the ageing population, which sets out the government's commitment to improve the health and social care of older people. The strategy is based on the following principles: (1) to improve the health and social care of older people; (2) to ensure that older people are able to live independently; (3) to ensure that older people are able to participate in society; and (4) to ensure that older people are able to live in their own homes.

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of understanding the cultural context of the research. It highlights the need for researchers to be sensitive to the values and beliefs of the communities they are studying. This is particularly important in the field of education, where cultural differences can significantly impact learning outcomes.

The second part of the paper focuses on the methodology used in the study. It describes the process of selecting participants, collecting data, and analyzing the results. The authors emphasize the importance of using a mixed-methods approach to gain a comprehensive understanding of the research topic.

The third part of the paper presents the findings of the study. It discusses the results of the quantitative data analysis and the insights gained from the qualitative interviews. The authors conclude that there are significant differences in learning outcomes between the two groups, and these differences can be attributed to cultural factors.

The final part of the paper offers recommendations for future research and practice. It suggests that educators should be aware of the cultural context of their students and tailor their teaching methods accordingly. Additionally, it calls for further research to explore the underlying reasons for the observed differences.

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of the research and the objectives of the study. It then presents a literature review of the existing research on the topic. The methodology section describes the research design and the data collection process. The results section presents the findings of the study, and the conclusion section summarizes the main points and provides recommendations for future research.

The research was conducted in a systematic and rigorous manner, following the principles of good research practice. The data were collected from a representative sample of the population, and the results were analyzed using appropriate statistical methods. The findings of the study are presented in a clear and concise manner, and the conclusions are based on the evidence presented.

The study has several strengths, including a large sample size and a high level of statistical power. However, there are also some limitations to the study, such as the cross-sectional design and the self-reported data. Despite these limitations, the study provides valuable insights into the topic and contributes to the existing knowledge in the field.

In conclusion, the study highlights the importance of the research and the need for further investigation in this area. The findings suggest that there is a need for more research on the topic, and the results provide a basis for future studies. The study also provides recommendations for future research, which should take into account the limitations of the current study.

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of the research and the objectives of the study. It then presents a literature review of the existing research on the topic. The next section describes the methodology used in the study, including the data sources and the statistical techniques employed. The results of the study are then presented, followed by a discussion of the findings and their implications. The paper concludes with a summary of the main points and suggestions for future research.

The research was conducted using a quantitative approach, with data collected from a survey of 1,000 participants. The survey was designed to measure the levels of various factors related to the research topic. The data was then analyzed using a series of statistical tests, including t-tests, ANOVA, and regression analysis. The results of these tests are presented in the following sections.

The findings of the study indicate that there is a significant relationship between the variables being studied. Specifically, the results show that as the level of one variable increases, the level of another variable also tends to increase. This relationship is supported by the statistical tests, which show that the probability of the results occurring by chance is very low.

These findings have important implications for the field of study. They suggest that the factors being studied are closely related and that understanding one factor can help to predict the level of another. This information can be used to develop more effective interventions or policies.

In conclusion, the study has provided valuable insights into the relationship between the variables being studied. The findings suggest that there is a strong, positive correlation between the two variables, and that this relationship is statistically significant. Further research is needed to explore the underlying mechanisms of this relationship and to develop more targeted interventions.

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of the research and the objectives of the study. It then proceeds to a literature review, where the existing research on the topic is examined. The methodology section describes the research design and the data collection process. The results section presents the findings of the study, and the conclusion summarizes the main points and offers suggestions for future research.

The study was conducted in a laboratory setting, where the participants were asked to perform a series of tasks. The data was collected using a specialized software package, which allowed for the precise measurement of the variables of interest. The results of the study are presented in a series of tables and graphs, which clearly illustrate the findings. The conclusion of the study is that the research objectives have been achieved, and the findings are significant.

The research was funded by the National Science Foundation, and the authors would like to express their gratitude to the funding agency for its support. The authors also wish to thank the participants for their contribution to the study and the reviewers for their helpful comments.

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of the research and the objectives of the study. It then presents a literature review of the existing research on the topic. The methodology section describes the research design and the data collection process. The results section presents the findings of the study, and the conclusion section summarizes the main findings and provides recommendations for future research.

The study was conducted in a laboratory setting. The participants were recruited from a local university and were assigned to two groups: the experimental group and the control group. The experimental group received the intervention, while the control group did not. The data was collected over a period of six weeks.

The results of the study show that the intervention had a significant positive effect on the outcome variable. The experimental group showed a significant improvement in the outcome variable compared to the control group. The findings suggest that the intervention is effective in improving the outcome variable.

The conclusion of the study is that the intervention is effective in improving the outcome variable. The findings suggest that the intervention is a promising approach for improving the outcome variable. Further research is needed to confirm the findings and to explore the long-term effects of the intervention.

DOCKET NO. NNH-CV-17-6074630-S : SUPERIOR COURT
ROBERT G. WHEELER ET AL : J.D. OF NEW HAVEN
V. : AT NEW HAVEN
JAMES COSGROVE AS SELECTMAN
OF THE TOWN OF BRANFORD ET AL : JANUARY 15, 2020

AFFIDAVIT OF DAVID S. HARDY

The undersigned, David S. Hardy, being of lawful age and duly sworn according to law, depose and state to the best of my personal knowledge and belief as follows:

1. I am over the age of eighteen years and I understand the obligations of an oath.
2. My firm is counsel to defendants Barbara Saggese and Beachcroft, LLC.
3. On December 31, 2019, the Court (Ozalis, J.) scheduled “a status conference and/or pretrial conference” for January 13, 2020 at 2:00 p.m. A true and correct copy of the notice is attached hereto as Exhibit A.
4. The status conference was scheduled at the request of counsel for the Selectmen of the Town of Branford advising the Court by letter dated December 17, 2019 that the Town and Beachcroft, LLC were engaged in discussions concerning a transaction that “would resolve most, if not all, issues that the Petitioners have raised in bringing this action.” The Town requested that the Court schedule a status conference for among other things “the purpose of seeing how these negotiations have advanced at that time.”
5. Pursuant to the foregoing order, my client, Barbara Saggese (individually and as member of Beachcroft, LLC) was available by telephone during the scheduled date and time of the conference.

6. The status conference was held off the record in chambers. The conference began with counsel for the Town of Branford reviewing with the Court the details of the transaction under discussion with Beachcroft, LLC, the steps that had been taken by the parties to inform those discussions and the fact that the parties were scheduled to meet again on January 15, 2020 to continue discussions toward a possible resolution.

7. In the course of those discussions, Judge Ozalis asked how far apart the parties were, what were the probabilities of reaching an agreement on monetary terms, and what the positions of the parties were on monetary terms.

8. The Court stated that it would hold another status conference on Wednesday, January 22, 2019 at 3 p.m. to allow the Town and Beachcroft to further report on the status of settlement discussions following their January 15, 2020 meeting.

9. The discussions then expanded to a discussion of whether, if the transaction contemplated between the Town and Beachcroft were agreed upon, or a mechanism for resolving the final terms of the transaction could be agreed upon, whether the remaining issues presented by this case and asserted by the petitioners and the Pine Orchard Association could also be resolved, along with all of the claims pending among the same parties in the related private property rights case, Wheeler v. Beachcroft, LLC, No. X07-HHD-CV-09-5034089-S. That case is pending in the Judicial District of Hartford and scheduled to begin evidence on February 3, 2020.

10. I asked counsel for the petitioners and the Pine Orchard Association if they had a specific settlement proposal for resolving the issues that would remain in this case and the related private rights case, assuming the Town and Beachcroft were able to resolve the issues as between them.

11. In response, counsel for the petitioners and the Pine Orchard Association laid out a detailed set of specific settlement terms that would be acceptable to those parties. I asked for clarification on some of the terms and took written notes of their settlement proposal.

12. Judge Ozalis then asked me to call my client to review the settlement proposal that had been offered and to report back.

13. I called my client at 3:05 p.m. to review and discuss the settlement terms that had been proposed. According to my I-Phone, that phone call lasted for 34 minutes.

14. Following that call, I spoke with counsel for fellow intervening defendants Roger Lowlicht and Kay Haedecke who had also left chambers to discuss the proposed settlement terms with his clients on the phone.

15. We then returned to Judge Ozalis's chambers with counsel for all parties to discuss my client's response to the settlement proposal presented by the petitioners and the Pine Orchard Association. Counsel for Roger Lowlicht and Kay Haedecke also responded with his clients' position with respect to the proposed settlement terms.

16. I identified and explained to counsel for the parties and Judge Ozalis my clients' points of concern and/or disagreement with specific terms included in the settlement proposal that had been presented.

17. In response, counsel for the petitioners and the Pine Orchard Association asked Judge Ozalis if they could leave chambers to discuss issues among themselves, which they proceeded to do.

18. While waiting for counsel for the petitioners and the Pine Orchard Association to return, I stated in chambers to Judge Ozalis, counsel for the Town and counsel for Roger Lowlicht and Kay Haedecke that while I was encouraged that we were discussing settlement, that Judge Ozalis's participation in these discussions raised concerns on my part with respect to her ability to further preside over the case if the parties were unable to reach a settlement.

19. I also stated to Judge Ozalis that my client had asked me to bring to her attention information that my client had gathered concerning Judge Ozalis's possible interest in the beach rights litigation described in the Affidavit of Barbara Saggese to determine if that information was correct.

20. In response Judge Ozalis confirmed her ownership of the home in [REDACTED] but stated that she was not a party to that litigation, that it had been resolved by the [REDACTED] in October of 2019, and that the issues in that case differed from the issues in this case.

21. When counsel for the petitioners and the Pine Orchard Association returned to chambers, Judge Ozalis stated she wanted to cease the settlement discussions given the questions that had been raised as to her continuing jurisdiction over the case.

22. The parties then discussed the fact that hearing management orders that had been proposed to the Committee by Beachcroft and Barbara Saggese and that a conference call had been held among the Committee and the parties to discuss hearing management and procedures.

23. Judge Ozalis stated that she would hold a hearing on January 15, 2019 at 10:00 a.m. to hear the parties on hearing management issues and thereafter issue her own orders to the Committee.

24. Following the foregoing chambers proceedings, the Judge Ozalis went on the record and provided a high-level summary of issues discussed in Chambers during the status conference and the next court events that had been scheduled. Further dialogue then ensued among the Court and counsel, including on the possibility of grounds for recusal, and the Court ordered that any motion for recusal be filed by January 24, 2020.
